

The natural choice in manned guarding

Protecting your people and property

An effective combination

Even in today's environment where technology is everywhere the physical presence of a security officer can never be underestimated. At First Security we aim to fully understand our clients to provide the best possible blend of security professionals, each vetted to BS 5758, and technology.

Trained committed staff

First Security provides the best all round employment package to our staff, which is supported by staff retention rates in excess of 95%.

Staff therefore stay with and work with the same client companies for long periods embracing the culture and gaining corporate knowledge – which enables them to go beyond simply providing a service.

All our staff are trained and whilst their primary role is security, they are also our clients' ambassadors as security officers are usually the first point of physical contact.

Our managers and supervisors work alongside the security officers with a one team culture, ensuring the customer is delighted by the service they receive. Equally each security officer is valued as an individual and an important part of the team.

Adding value to your business

We constantly keep up to date with latest innovations and check that what we provide is the most cost effective solution possible. First Security also believes in value added services, whether it is officers providing reports to your facilities management team of defects found during patrols, supervising contractors, or carrying out basic maintenance tasks.

Protection comes first

Our primary purpose is to ensure your people and assets are protected. By employing First Security you can leave this to us secure in the knowledge that we are the best team money can buy.

Small enough to care, big enough to cope

First Security operates throughout London and nationally. We deal with everything from small family run businesses to FTSE 100 companies and across all industry sectors.

We feel we have just the right balance of resource, innovation and responsiveness to always be there with the right solution whenever you need us.
