

The natural choice in electronic security

Watching over what's important

Integrated electronic security and access systems

Rapid advances in technology provides an ever increasing volume of diverse and complex electronic security systems. Understanding, implementing and monitoring these systems can prove to be both time consuming and problematic for businesses.

With over 25 years experience, First Security has developed a wealth of knowledge across all security services. This is why our in-depth experience and intelligent thinking delivers absolute security and peace of mind for our clients.

From expert advice in choosing your electronic security system to sourcing, installing and monitoring, you will feel secure in the knowledge that First Security has your people, property and assets protected.

CCTV - offering you more

Originally installed to identify criminal behaviour, the use of CCTV in working environments has greatly evolved. CCTV is now seen as a valuable tool to assist overall business management, working collaboratively with many electronic systems to deliver a complete and unique electronic security solution.

CCTV allows for the analysis of real-time video surveillance to identify events of interest, or pre-recorded video for the purpose of extracting events and data. Video analytics is fast becoming a powerful tool to drive quality improvement across business, from improved customer service to increased efficiency in workforce management, as well as better access to data for more informed operational decisions.

Additional solutions to protect your people and property

Implementing a simple solution such as anti-theft tagging (EAS), through to a more advanced solution such as swipe card access control, we will deliver a service that ensures your most sensitive or valued possessions are always in the right hands.

From the simple to the sophisticated

Across all electronic systems from alarm monitoring to total building management, First Security can design an electronic security system to meet your security needs. From galleries and financial institutions, retail outlets, commercial offices to industrial premises and warehouses; regardless of the sector you're in, our expert team will deliver professional solutions that suit your premises and assets, as well as your budget.
